

Health, food and productivity over the long run

Research assistants are needed for a project to investigate Canadian health, food and productivity over the long run. Students will work in a team based in the Historical Data Research Unit <http://www.hdru.ca/> to prepare, management, analyze, and present data. Familiarity with basic statistical techniques and database software is required.

Contact Kris Inwood kinwood@uoguelph.ca.